PEPITA BAGUETTE Carolina Khoury

By and with
Carolina Khoury

We all pursue a dream. Often, after a lot of searching, we get a surprise: the treasure we have so longed for is so close that it turns out to be inaccessible. Two sandwiches are what Pepita yearns for and reaches out to grasp – her impossible dream and an unexpected, magical entertainment for us. It's very difficult to remain unmoved by this show of perfectly balanced mime, dance and clowning. It pulls at the heartstrings, and is like a little pocket notebook containing numerous strategies that we can adopt to attain our objectives. We have her stubbornness – donkeys that are intent on grasping our carrot – and we can easily recognise, in her continuous, unfulfilled quest, the stratagems, both possible and impossible, the astuteness and the caution, the unexpected actions and improvised behaviour. And all this is presented with great economy of means, to give us maximum enjoyment: what would we not do for a crust of bread!

After a short but intense career as a goldsmith, Carolina Khoury is back in the theatre. After the P.A.U.T. Teatro Fisico school directed by Philip Radice she studied the language of the clown with Jean Menigue, Pierre Byland, Loco Brusca and Angelika Georg, and drama with Roberta Carreri, Tage Larsen (Odin Teatret) and Naira Gonzalez. She studied Butoh dance with the master Tadashi Endo. She collaborates with the Teatro della Caduta di Torino and with the Action Theatre company and the TRG Foundation as an actress and puppeteer. She is the author of several shows, including Pepita Baguette, which have led her to perform in numerous squares and festivals in Italy.
